PRESS RELEASE

February 9, 2011 –

Duxbury Police arrested a man last night after he drove his car off the road and assaulted a woman who attempted to assist him. At approximately 9:30 PM Michael Hennebury, age 37, of Hanover drove his pickup truck off the road and onto the lawn of an Abrams Hill home. The vehicle got stuck and an Abrams Hill woman in her seventies went outside to see what was going on. When she approached the truck Hennebury got out of the truck and kicked her several times. When the woman fell to the ground he continued to kick her in the head and face. Officer Tom Johnson arrived on scene and found Hennebury attempting to drive the vehicle out of the snow. Hennebury was arrested and charged with Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (Shod Foot), Assault and Battery on a Person Over 60, Operating Under the Influence of Liquor (4th Offense), and numerous traffic violations. Although she had visible injuries the victim refused medical treatment and returned to her home.
